

Case Study 1 – Certain Reaction

Patient Details

Patient: Male, 45 years

Drug Taken: Penicillin Injection

Indication: Bacterial infection

Adverse Reaction: Severe skin rash and itching within 20 minutes of administration

Assessment

Reaction appeared immediately after drug administration.

Symptoms disappeared after stopping the drug and giving antihistamines.

Reappeared when penicillin was administered again accidentally after 3 months.

No other medicines were involved.

Causality Classification: Certain

Reason

There is a clear time relationship, positive re-challenge, and no alternative explanation for the reaction